

Fidelity Investments announces participation in U.S. Treasury Temporary Guarantee Program for Money Market Funds

October 7, 2008

Fidelity Investments and the Board of Trustees of Fidelity's money market funds have determined that all of Fidelity's retail and institutional money market mutual funds will participate in the U.S. Treasury Department Temporary Guarantee Program for Money Market Funds.

Fidelity and the Trustees believe that it is in the interests of our fund shareholders to participate in the program. Even though it is highly unlikely that the insurance will be needed for any of our funds, we expect the program to reassure our investors that their money market funds will continue to provide safety and liquidity for their cash investments.

Under the program, the U.S. Treasury will guarantee the share price of any publicly offered eligible money market mutual fund that applies for and pays a fee to participate in the program. The coverage would apply only to investments held in participating money market funds as of the close of business on September 19, 2008.

Our funds continue to invest in money market securities of high quality, and our customers continue to have full access to their investments any time they wish. Most importantly, we have been proactive in keeping our money market funds safe and in protecting the $1.00 net asset value (NAV), which has always been our #1 objective in managing these funds. That's what our clients and customers expect from us, and what we continue to be dedicated to providing for them.

Below are some additional details of the Treasury Department program:

- Under the program, coverage is provided to shareholders for amounts that they held in participating money market funds as of the close of business on September 19, 2008. A shareholder's holdings in a participating money market fund as of September 19, 2008, represent the maximum amount of assets eligible for reimbursement under the program. Any increase in the number of shares held in an account after the close of business on September 19, 2008, will not be guaranteed. If the number of shares held in the account fluctuates over the period, investors will be covered for either the number of shares held as of the close of business on September 19, 2008, or the current amount, whichever is less.

- The guarantee will be triggered only if a participating fund liquidates its assets as a result of its net asset value falling below $0.995, commonly referred to as “breaking the buck.” The Treasury Department states that, in the event that a participating fund breaks the buck and liquidates, a guarantee payment should be made to investors through their fund within approximately 30 days, subject to possible extensions at the discretion of the Treasury.
- The program is designed to address temporary dislocations in credit markets. It will exist for an initial three-month term, after which the Secretary of the Treasury will review the need and terms for extending the program.
- Fees paid to the Treasury Department to participate in the program will depend upon each fund’s net asset value (NAV) per share as of September 19, 2008.
- While the program protects the accounts of investors, each money market fund makes the decision to sign up for the program. Investors cannot sign up for the program individually.
- Eligible funds include both taxable and tax-exempt money market funds. The Treasury and IRS issued guidance that confirmed that participation in the temporary guarantee program will not be treated as a federal guarantee that jeopardizes the tax-exempt treatment of payments by tax-exempt money market funds.
